Foreword

The Senior Class of Twenty-two presents this the fourth volume of Old Hickory as a reminder of the events and spirit of the Normal. This book has its imperfections, we know, but we know also that it has its perfections. If in reading these pages you laugh with us and weep with us—share our hopes and fears—WE have not burned the midnight oil in vain.

Our Day

Uncle Sid, deserted by the Faculty on the first day of April, called on the Student Body for support. No one volunteered at first; but the Senior Class, too kind-hearted to allow President Gilbreath to talk during the entire chapel hour, reluctantly agreed to take up the time. The Senior Class, as was to be expected, rendered a most enjoyable program of orchestra numbers, a Senior Play, duets, solos, fashion shows, talks, an essay on man, arguments for Disarmament, and at the close of the program expressed their appreciation to all members of the Faculty for their efforts in their behalf and bestowed appropriate gifts on their Senior Faculty Favorites.

Last year, a wedding occurred among the Faculty and rumors of weddings have been frequent this year—we won't say just who were to be the parties—but all rumors came to naught so the faculty decided that they would have a wedding.

In the auditorium of the East Tennessee State Normal was solemnized one of the most brilliant weddings of the season when Miss Rogers became the bride of Mr. Porter. All members of the Faculty acted as ushers, bridesmaids, flower girls, ring-bearers, train-bearers, and guests. The little girls were lovely in their fluffy white dresses with their huge bouquets.

The reception in the gymnasium was well attended by the students and friends of the bride and all agreed that this was as romantic as a real faculty wedding—almost.

Class of Twenty-two

Nestled in the hills of East Tennessee,
In a bowl of verdant hue,
Where the sunlit air so pure and free
Glistens on the morning dew;
Where the birds cheerily give with their song
Tidings of joy all the day long—
Is our own E. T. S. N.

We are a part of old E. T. S. N.
The Middle Year Class of '22,
Striving earnestly to become women and men,
Throughout life noble and true.
To the discouraged, toil-worn student with aching heart
May we courage, strength, and sympathy impart—
We, the Middle Year Class of '22.

The Certificate Class was organized in January with quite a large number on the roll. We have worked whole-heartedly under the capable and excellent supervision of our Faculty Advisor, Miss Pearl Bennett. We have striven to obtain great knowledge so that we might be efficient as we go out into various communities to teach and so that we might be able to impart our knowledge intelligently to our students.

When the Spring Term opened we increased our enrollment to one hundred and eighteen members, each eager and desirous to have the Certificate Class of '22 the best class to graduate from the Certificate Department of the Normal School.

Let us now be up and doing
With a heart for any fate,
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait.

Buildings at Last

“BUILD THEE MORE STATELY MANSIONS.”

All students and friends of the Normal School are looking forward to the completion of the long-promised new buildings, which are now under construction.

The Men's Dormitory will be fireproof throughout. It contains fifty bedrooms which will accommodate one hundred men; society hall; reception room; and servants' quarters. It is to be equipped with electric lights, hot water, steam heat, showers, and an elevator.

The Library Building will contain a reading-room 30x90 feet, stock-room 20x42 feet, library methods room 12x20 feet, and an assembly room 20x30 feet. The number of volumes in the library will be increased from 3,000 to 10,000 volumes.

The new Gymnasium, which is to be of brick, concrete and steel construction, will be one of the best college gymnasia in the South. The playing court will be 50x70 feet. The lockers and dressing room for the girls will be 20x70 feet and there will be a room of the same dimensions for the boys. There will also be apparatus rooms, office and galleries, which will seat 800 people.

Ouija Jane

"Now, Jane, you know very well that you don't believe in spiritualism, so why are you all the time putting up that argument? There's absolutely nothing to it." So saying Annette Warrington gave a toss of her brown curls, put a finishing touch to her pink nails and banged her heels defiantly against the trunk on which she was perched.

"Well, Annette, you know what that docctor said in his lecture this morning. Sir Oliver Lodge held a conversation with his son who was killed in No Man's Land. And if that is so, why can't we send waves of thought across the continent if need be, and get an answer from our friends?"

At this moment the sound of voices was heard on the stairs, and a crowd of laughing, rollicking girls came with a chorus of "O, Janie, you ought to have been up the street when we saw the number of the matinee. It was 'Ask Ita.' We went in. She is wonderful, tells fortunes coming and going, and answers any kind of questions."

"Why, yes," chimed in the meek little Mary," she told Mrs. Moore where to find her diamond pin."

"Now, anybody that believes that," said the practical Ann, "is dippy, perfectly dippy!"

Annette's grey eyes began to shine. She set her chin high and prepared for combat.

"But Ann, just go and ask her anything you like. Why, we wrote our questions on paper and she read them right off."

"Yes, this is the way she did it," explained the dramatic Sadie. "For instance, she read my initials S. C. I did not hold up my hand at once and she said, Sadie—a pause—I do believe she would have called out 'Carter' if I had given her another second."

"Very easy," said the wise Annette, "not only was she a good guesser but no doubt she already had your name from the city directory."

"O Ann, she worked so hard that great beads of perspiration stood out on her brow. I tell you she holds direct communication with spirits."

"Hush!" chimed in Marian, "we went to see a new thing called a Ouija board. It is a square board with a table on it. The table is surrounded by the letters of the alphabet, and it spells out the answer in a most uncanny fashion."

Janie's eyes were misty. She was thinking of Tom, who had never been heard from since the Battle of the Marne.

"It costs fifty cents to go in and ask it things," said Marian, "we asked it if we'd ever get married; if so, to whom, when, and where."

"I'm going to marry a lawyer next year," said Sadie.

"And I shall marry a doctor and go abroad to live," said Joe.

Janie's wits were working fast. Her cheeks were pink. Maybe she could get some trace of Tom.

Making an excuse to get some groceries for 'Aunt Marge,' Jane caught the three-forty-five car into town. How strange to think of holding a conversation with Tom! What would he think of her, having recently settled in a strange town to go dashing madly up the street like this to call on him on the Ouija board? But it could only be his spirit though, and Janie heaved a sigh, reaching for a handkerchief, she gave a sniff, threw back her shoulders and walked on up the street.

A woman, with hard black eyes, met Janie at the door and conducted her down the narrow passage to a dimly lighted room where the Ouija woman in a low voice was explaining the wonderful mechanism of the instrument before her, and endeavoring to prove that all spirits of the realm beyond were forced to respond to this all-powerful call.

A tall man with thoughtful brow was listening, and upon Janie's entrance suddenly turned.

With a startled shriek Janie began to sway, and sank unconscious to the floor. She woke to find herself lying on a couch and Tom bending anxiously over her.

Janie rubbed her eyes and her nose wrinkled quizzically. She managed to utter the one word, "Tom!"

"Yes?" he said.

"I thought you died in the Battle of the Marne, and I came to call you."

"O, Janie dear! I thought you died of influenza and I came to call you!"

They held each other's hands very tight to make sure that they were not spirits.

And six months afterwards when orange blossoms had bloomed and all the rice in town had been thrown, Janie, passing down the front hall, saw a queer-looking package on the table. She prodded it curiously and found on closer examination that it was a neatly constructed Ouija board. The girls of Janie's apartment had converted the skeptical Ann.

Sayings in and Around the Normal

My conscience will not allow me to permit the Seniors to buy Bibles.
That is beautifully indefinite.
A thought without expression is a thought without impression.
Ho!
Students must sit close and put their mouths together at ball games.
Young Lady, let me suggest—.
Is it against the rules? ——It will be.
Was the noise in this apartment? The President has just 'phoned.
Are you a Shifter?
I wish I could go to the Red Store—got anything to eat?
Let me wear that dress tomorrow.
Young Ladies, I will give you a nickel if you will find my golf ball.
Is he going to give us a test today?
Let me have your note book.
Report to Your Uncle Sid in the morning.
See me immediately after chapel.
Say, where's the key?
Did we win?
Clear the halls.
Stop! Young men.
Got a powder puff?
Who is that good-looking man?
Have I a letter?
Where is this lesson?
Get some one else; I'm doing my practice teaching.
Loan me your curlers.
Is my make-up on straight?

The Normal branch of the Young Men's Christian Association was organized September 20, 1920. A cabinet was elected consisting of a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. The term of office is one year. Regular weekly meetings are held every Wednesday evening.

The programs are given careful consideration, and are planned to cover every phase of school activities, which encourages school spirit and promote character building.

The organization wishes to acknowledge its indebtedness to the members of the faculty who have manifested an interest in the promotion of its aims and advancement of its motives. As a reward for this commendable work, we can only add to the much they have done the little we have tried to do, and assign it for fruition to posterity.

Several years ago a Young Woman's Christian Association was organized at the East Tennessee State Normal. The aim of the Young Women's Christian Association is to develop the highest conception of Christian womanhood and to aid young women in realizing this conception by bringing to them opportunities for all-round development. This organization in this institution has been a great success from the first year.

There were no meetings during the Summer quarter, but at the opening of the Fall term, having as its president Miss Eudora Edington, who has fulfilled her duties faithfully, the organization continued its work with the zeal and eagerness that has at all times characterized it. Splendid programs have been carried out on Wednesday evening of each week and these have been both inspiring and instructive. The co-operation of the faculty members, especially Miss Yoakley and Miss Anderson, has been a source of much benefit to the organization.

We have an attractive reading room which serves as a safety valve for the girls when they are lonely, for here they may spend many quiet and restful hours, and thus forget the cares and worries that are incidental to school life. On the Science floor of the Administration building, we have a store which is managed by the Y. W. C. A. girls, the proceeds of which help in the maintenance of the association.

This organization has done much to help in the development of a full rounded womanhood. The four sides of a girl's life—moral, spiritual, physical and intellectual are recognized and an attempt is made to strengthen each.

It is the wish of the girls, who at present compose the organization that it may continue to function in the life of the school as it has in the past.

Girls' Glee Club

The Girls' Glee Club organization was perfected at the beginning of the Fall term, 1920, with a membership of thirty-two.

The first year was very successful and enthusiasm was such that there were thirty-five applications for new membership at the opening of the Fall quarter for the year '21-'22. There were ten of the old members who returned. The following officers were elected for the year.

Miss Eudora Edington	President
Miss Dovie Mae Jones	Vice-President
Miss Mary Goodner	Secretary
Miss Lillian Arrants	Treasurer
Miss Kate Hope	Librarian

At the first business meeting the year book was adopted and the program for the year outlined. Work was begun on the first number, "The Japanese Girl," by Vincent. This was produced January 16 and was a brilliant success both musically and socially. The soprano role was sung by Miss Helen Lusk, most ably supported by Miss Eudora Edington and Miss Dona Perry. Miss Mary Goodner sang the part of the American School Teacher and her work was exceptionally good. The Misses Reams gave a creditable performance as the American School Girl Twins, and Miss Dora Ford's singing of the role of the Busy Servant Girl was a feature within itself.

The annual open program was not given this year on account of the Club's activities in other social functions of the student body.

Opportunity was given at the opening of the Spring quarter for additional members. There were ten applications. Work was begun on the new operetta, "The Wild Rose," by Rhys—Herbert. This promises to be one of the most artistic numbers yet undertaken. The performance will be given some time during the Summer quarter.

The Glee Club, under the excellent supervision of Professor A. V. McFee and the capable assistance rendered by Mrs. McFee, has made more progress musically the past year than in any preceding year.

Men's Glee Club

The success of an organization depends, in a measure, upon its being able to give the individual member something that he believes he needs. The realization of the necessity for music by the young men was brought about in three ways: one chief reason which led to the two subordinate. These are our very aggressive director of music who emphasized the need for more singing in rural communities, and created a desire to learn something about music appreciation. With these in mind, the Men's Glee Club was organized November 1, 1921. The officers were elected, committees appointed, and arrangements made for regular weekly meetings. The Director, Prof. Vernon McFee briefly outlined the year's work that was to be done. The main feature of the work, an operatta, "Captain Van der Hunn," by Rhy-Hebert, is to be given May 15, 1922, under the able leadership of the Director and Mrs. McFee. Progress in practice is being made rapidly. It is believed the end of this school year will witness the close of the most successful season of the Men's Glee Club activities since the Normal has been established.

The Dramatic Club

Irene Harris.....President
E. P. King.....Vice-President
Trent Huff.....Secretary and Treasurer

The Dramatic Club of the East Tennessee State Normal has become one of the vital factors in the life of the school, especially for those who are interested in the drama. Our club was organized and has done its work under the excellent supervision of Dean Burleson and Miss Ruth McClellan. At the regular monthly meetings, modern dramatists are studied. This year the club has been studying John Galsworthy, Henrik Ibsen and Maurice Maeterlink.

The following is a list of plays which have been studied:

Galsworthy's Strife, Joy, and The Pigeon; Ibsen's Doll's House; Hedda Gables, and Ghosts; Maeterlink's Blue Bird, and Pellas and Melisande.

During the Fall term three one-act plays were given by the club, coached by Miss McClellan, who is the head of the Expression department. They were: "The Florist Shop" by Winifred Hawkrige; "The Market of Dreams" by Oliphant Down, and "Play-goers" by Arthur Pinero. The work of each member of the cast was splendid and the plays were pronounced a decided success.

The presentation of Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen," displayed marked ability on the part of each member of the cast, and brought peals of laughter from the audience.

How Columbus Discovered America

Columbus started from England to discover America. He was the proud owner of a small boat with poles for propellers. He took with him a loaf of bread, a clam basket, an old ham bone, an alarm clock, and also, his brother Nicodemus. His brother had a hat that measured twenty feet around the brim. He took with him for society a pig, a cat, and a rat; for fear they would quarrel, he placed the rat in the cheese box, the cat in a salt box, and the pig in the cabin. Columbus' clock was rather small. The hour hand was only six feet long.

One day the pig took a walk on the deck, and becoming dizzy, he fell overboard and was drowned. He was two years, three months, five days, six hours, thirty minutes and fifty seconds old at the time of his death. Soon afterwards Columbus saw land. He made toward a large rock which seemed to be covered with birds. Drawing nearer, he saw that they were Plymouth Rock hens, so he named this Plymouth Rock. When he landed, some Indians came out of the forest, and when they came near enough to speak to Columbus, one Indian who was the chief said to him: "Are you Columbus?" Columbus answered:

"Yes, and are you the Indians?"

"Yes," and turning to the other Indians, the chief said:

"Columbus has discovered us. The jig is up."

The Seasons

Can't you hear the brook a-singin'
And the Easter bells a-ringin'
And the flowers all a-springin'?
Spring is here!

Soon you'll hear the birds a-hummin'
And the bumble-bees a-hummin',
And the 'skeeter wings a-strummin',
Summer's here!

Then you'll hear the leaves a-fallin',
And the ting of frost a-callin',
And the old red calf a-bawlin',
Autum's here!

Last you hear the cold wind sighin',
See the soft white snowflakes flyin',
Christmas time will soon be by an'
Winter's here!

Pestalozzian Literary Society

The Pestalozzian Literary Society was organized in the year 1911. Through the eleven years of its existence there has been a steady growth of power and influence. Today it stands among the most active organizations of the Normal. Throughout its history it has had "would be" competitors which have sprung up and withered away over night; but according to the law of the survival of the fittest the Pestalozzian Society can never die.

The organization stands for a three-fold development: sociability, the development of the art of public speaking, and the advancement in knowledge of parliamentary law.

During the Fall term of this year a very interesting amendment was made to the constitution, which requires the initiation of all candidates for membership.

The Winter term contributed its full share to the accomplishments of the year. The society's sister organization, the Sapphonian, was invited to be present at a very interesting program which was given in the auditorium of the main building. The greatest step forward the society has made since its establishment was the election of Prof. Fields as its sponsor.

Under the able leadership of Mr. Pemberton, the Spring term promises to be unexcelled by any during the organization's existence.

Every prospective student of the Normal is earnestly solicited for membership in the Pestalozzian Literary Society.

Sapphonian, I Love You

□

(Pennsylvania, I'm Mighty Proud of You)

I am a true Sapphonian, and I'm mighty proud to say
For you, my dear society, I'd give my life away.
You're the talk of the other societies; the envy of all of them too,
For, like you there is no other, under the Gold and the Blue.

(CHORUS)

Sapphonian, I love you, and I love you more each day;
You reign all alone—like a queen on her throne—
The pride of the E. T. N.
I love your talks and your debates
Your songs and your essays, too,
Sapphonian I love you and I'm mighty proud of you.

You're the source of inspiration, making many girls succeed,
The source of high ambition which all great persons need.
All members bravely stand by our colors and proudly they bear on high
Always prepared for the conflict, ready to do or die.

Literary Contest

The literary societies of the school were greatly encouraged by an announcement made in chapel during the Fall term of two contests to be held between April 15 and May 20.

Mr. Marshall, a member of the State Board of Education, has offered a prize of $10 for the best original oration given by a member of one of the societies. President Gilbreath has also offered a prize of $10 to the society presenting the best program.

Each society has signified its intention of entering both contests and is enthusiastically working on the program. Each is confident that it will receive both prizes.

A Faint Recollection

Did I not meet you

It seems that I did.
Did I not greet you
Beyond the Silver Moon?
I believe I did—
A long time ago.

I believe it is true
That the pale silent moon,
In the long, long ago,
Witnessed a scene—
Romantic as a dream
That caused her to ponder and smile
In the silent.

For numberless years
Before we came here—
Before this world
Became such a world—
I believe, dear friend,
The Heavens above
Nourished our love,
And we lived in the arms of God.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Football

The Football team of 1921 made a very creditable record in view of the fact that this is the second team that has ever represented the school. Out of eight games played, five were won.

The first game played was with the Johnson City High School and resulted in a victory by a large score. The next game was with Tusculum College. The Normal sprung a surprise on the Tusculum boys and walked away with a victory of 20-0. The next game was played with an all-star team made up of former college players who reside in Johnson City. Our team easily defeated the all-stars 14-7. The next victory was at the expense of Washington College by the score 42-0. The Normal boys journeyed to Carson and Newman and stacked up against old players that had formerly played with U. T. and other large schools. There was much question as to the sportsmanlike treatment the Normal team received here. The final score was 46-0, with the Normal at the small end.

Our next defeats were brought about by King College who had a team of experienced players. The game at Bristol was lost by costly fumbles, the score being 42-7. The game was lost on the home field 35-0. The game of all games to the Normal, was played November 11, on the home field with Milligan College. The Milligan team fought every inch, but the Normal fought harder, and won by the score of 12-7.

With many of the old team back next year and much new material, Coach Windes expects to put out a team that will rank with the best college teams of this section of the state.

Who's Who at the Normal

When you take a look around you at the sports of '22
And the Normal boys were fitted out to speed the old game through,
And the fans were very happy at the spirit of the team
"Who were they?" I'll tell you, tho' how awful it may seem.

I'll begin right in the center with our old friend, Woot DeMarcus.
He was the fastest thing that ever slipped into a human carcass.
When the ball and man got started he would meet them in the air,
And he'd turn them wrong side outwards, rooting, rooting everywhere.

Next comes Reece, the little forward, who was always seen a lopin'
When the ball got started down the court his mouth would fly wide open,
And he'd pin it up against the wall and squeeze it like a lemon.
Perhaps he did it to fool his man, and to look at all the women.

And here comes Ward, the speedy boy who never grins nor glances
But darts about with all his might and gets a thousand chances,
And now and then he puts one through and turns to hear applauses;
His smile's a frown and he then falls down and grumbles at his causes.

Hurrah! for here comes Quillen, also Irwin out together.
I think they both come out that way to represent the weather
With hair raked back and noses red, on down the court a-prancing
They march all round the thing, I think, and look for admiring glances.

Now, mind you, Mr. Quillen is forever on his guard,
But now and then he hits the floor and hits it good and hard,
And when he went to——to show his speed some more
'Twas then his man shot 66 and he swore he'd guard no more.

But putting 'em all together, I suppose they're hard to beat
For the record that was made this year, is nice and cool and sweet.
But here's my hand to the faculty, some rooters, mixed with others;
Let's take a step and keep our pep and greet our sporting brothers.

Boys' Basketball

When Coach Reese announced the opening of the Basket-ball season about twenty men responded. Among these were: Quillen, Choate, Simmons, E. Ward and J. Ward of last year's team. Irwin, DeMarcus and Reece found regular places as guard, center and forward. After a week's practice two practice games were played with local high school teams, which resulted in overwhelming victories for our team. After Christmas holidays, the team began by winning consistently, defeating on the local floor, Maryville College, Washington College, and King College.

Next came the most successful Basket-ball trip any Normal team has ever made, playing through Virginia, King College, Emory and Henry College, Daleville College, Abingdon Army Quintette and the strong Bristol Y. M. C. A. Only one game was lost and that to Emory and Henry by the close score of 16-11. The strong Bristol "Y" team was defeated by the largest score ever amassed against them on their floor, and this in spite of the fact that they presented their full line-up of championship basket-tossers.

Another trip was made south the latter part of February, adding to the list of victories Athens and Maryville College—the latter was possibly the best game ever staged on the Maryville floor, resulting in a Normal victory by the close score of 21-22. Here the team showed the best machine work it ever displayed.

The Normal was pressing close claims for championship honors when they were called upon to meet their strong local opponent, Milligan College, which had, like the Teachers, played the entire season without losing a game in the Appalachian Conference. The Teachers, as is well known, lost their horseshoe and met defeat in two engagements. In spite of this fact, the locals have amassed against all opponents the highest percentage in the score columns that has ever been attained against all comers in this section.

The entire team played well under the direction of Coach Reece, who worked hard and consistently for a winning aggregation, and the season was the most successful the Normal has ever enjoyed. Thirteen college games were won out of sixteen played.

The enviable record of the team has attracted the attention of all colleges in this section and now the managers seem to be able to secure contracts with the best of them without difficulty. The new gymnasium will be completed

Ward--- (0) Nothing Professor, Lord! Lord! Lord!
Quillen-----6 fouls out of 30, Professor
Eggers-----Same old thing, Professor

Oh, The Game

It was back in February when our rep was at its best
And we all were glad and happy at the scalps that we possessed,
And the world to us seemed little as to basketball and such
Until we ran out to Milligan to hand to them that awful touch.

When the game began to bubble, all our spirits were on high
And we laughed and screamed to see our pal DeMarcus skipping by,
But when we came to our poor senses five minutes later, I suppose,
Amazed were we to find the score run up to "something" no one knows.

We began to glance around to see if the gang were all still there
And of all the big surprises—a thousand ghosts, I do declare,
Yet we cheered up just a little for a brave old bunch were we
Until we glanced over in the corner to see our trembling friend McFee.

And we came on back "you tell 'em," eating peanuts, laughing too,
And we talked of old time glories and of future things in view,
But we dropped the present lightly and began to hum that tune:
We'll down 'em, yes we'll down 'em, and we'll do it pretty soon.

So we lost and now let's remember as we travel round about
That we the gang don't give a whang, for we're never down and out.
And you've no reason to be sad, for there's much around for you,
And now let's smile and stay awhile, with the dear Old Normal Crew.

The Girl's Basketball team of '22 entered the field full of vim and vigor, ready to defend the East Tennessee State Normal School with our utmost strength.

We did not fear to accept challenges from college teams of several years' experience in the field.

Miss Armbrust, head of the Department of Physical Culture, was our coach, and with the capable assistance given by Professor W. R. Windes, the team made more progress in the science and skill of playing than any other preceding team of the Normal.

Among the teams we played were: Martha Washington College, Tennessee Polytechnic Institute, Maryville College, Kingsport High, and Virginia High.

Baseball

Prospects for a winning baseball team look brighter at the Normal than for several years. With Choate, Ward, Quillen, Alexander, Massengill and Shell, letter men of last year, back, the Normal should put out a college team that will rank with the leading colleges of this section.

The new candidates who are sure of a place are: Reece, S. S.; King, 3B.; Sharp and Cobble, Catchers; L. Jones and Hart, Fielders.

Although no college games have been played, a very strong schedule has been completed, including games with Milligan, Tusculum, Maryville, Athens, Murphy, Johnson Bible, King, Emory and Henry, T. P. I., and other teams.

Two practice games have been played. The Normal lost to Toledo at Bristol and won from Johnson City High School by a very large score.

Coach Windes has been putting the team through some stiff practice on the new field and is expected to develop one of the strongest teams that has represented the Normal in many seasons.

The line-up of team:

WARD, 1B.	CHOATE, 2B.
REECE, S. S.	KING, 3B.

New Students

A larger class of new students entered the Normal School this Spring quarter than ever before in the history of the school. These students have added so much to the life of the school that we feel that the Annual would be incomplete without some mention of them. More than one-half of these are graduates of first-class high schools who have taught for one or more terms. Many of them are now enrolled in the regular courses of the school and will remain until their graduation.

A few of the new students are shown on the opposite page.

Normal Schedule

Sunset

Oh! look at the beautiful golden west,
The light of the world now going to rest,
Folded in clouds of blue and white,
Just waiting to say to the world good-night.

It vanishes slowly to lands unknown,
With a lingering thought of the day now gone,
Slowly but surely it fades from our sight,
It sinks into darkness, it rises in light.

So spend we this life's last ray—
A lingering thought of the dying day—
Then quietly sink in the shades of night,
To rise in a calmer, serener light.

When he first came to see her,
He showed a timid heart.
And when the lights were low,
They sat this far apart.

But as their love grew warmer,
And they learned the joy of a kiss,
They knocked out all the spaces
And sat up close like this.
—Sphinx.

Miss Smith—"What do you call the college cows?"

Choate—"Bess, Stump, and Pup."

Miss Smith—"Why such short names?"

Choate—"Well, I would call one United States but I am afraid she would go dry."

Edley Rogers—"Daddy, who was that man playing golf with his mustache?"

Quillen called for his seventh sandwich at the basketball party.

Jim Ward (in a stage party whispered)—"Daddy, if you eat another one you will bust."

Daddy—"Well, give it to me and get out of the room."

Lenoir—"I have no use for Ebb King. He yawned three times while I was talking."

Carrie—"He wasn't yawning, he was merely trying to get a word in."

Dean Burleson was in the Atkin Dining room and the collared waiter inquired:

"Is you dat Mistah Jones what used to come in here so much?"

Dean Burleson replied—"No, I am Dean Burleson. I am connected with the Normal."

"Oh, you is! Is it that Normal what Mistah Hale is president of?"

The cows are in the meadow,
The sheep are in the grass,
But all the silly little geese
Are in the Junior class.

Miss Mathes—"Do you like Chaminade?"

Donna—"Yes, but I have to be particular about what I eat."

Jokes

Prof. Field—"Tell me something of Homer and his works."
Genava (absently)—"Old Homer shook a wicked pen."

Miss McClellan—"What's the matter, Grace? Can't you speak louder? Be more enthusiastic! Open your mouth and throw yourself into it."

Louise—"I hear that kissing is becoming unfashionable."
Beulah—"Well, I don't care for style much anyway."

Paree—"Are you trying to make a fool of me?"
Edith—"No, I'm willing to let nature take its course."

Prof. Burleson—"Compose a sentence with 'each'."
Mrs. Gibson—"Professor, does your head 'each?'"

Houston—"I'm going to kiss you when I leave."
Himey—"Well, leave the dormitory instantly."

FOOLISH OCCUPATIONS

Shoeing the foot of a hill.
Making the mouth of a river yawn.
Greasing the hub of the universe.
Cooking on a mountain range.
Tying knots in the threads of Destiny.
Darning a hole in a coat of paint.
Pounding knowledge into the head of a Junior.
Powdering the face of a clock.

Senior—"Junior, you should take out an accident policy."
Junior—"Why, sir?"
Senior—"Some day a thought might strike you."

Carolyn—"What is the faculty?"
Lucille—"A bunch of people paid to help us Seniors run the school."

ADS.

Wanted—A new pair of shoes. Mates preferred.
—Shrapnel Sharpe.

Lost—All of my weight above the ears.
—DeMarcus.

Found—A way to talk twice as fast as the average individual and say half as much.

—Claude Mitchell

Wanted—Extra handles for cups in the cafeteria.
—Mrs. Gurley.

Jokes

Prof. McFee—"Did you ever sing a solo?"

Anna—"No, not by myself."

Speaking of ignorance—there are some people at Milligan who think that Easter Sunday is Billy Sunday's sister.

"So you graduated from a barber college? What's your college yell?"

"Cut his lip, cut his jaw, leave his face, raw, raw, raw!"

Anna Branch (beginning her oration)—"Friends and fellow students, lend me your ears."

Ruth—"Listen to that, will you? Anna Branch is always wanting to borrow something."

Prof. Prince—"Do you see anything ridiculous in my wig?"

Z—"Yes, your head."

Mat—"I just fell asleep in the cemetery and one of the skeletons touched me for a couple of bones."

Bill—"You're a flirt."

Wils—"I am not a flirt. I chase the girls because it is good for my rheumatism."

Eudora—"I'm sorry I didn't see you when you called, but I was just getting my hair washed."

Ed—"Yes, and the lanudries are so slow about returning things."

If you can't laugh at the jokes of this age laugh at the age of these jokes.

Normalites gazing at Cranberry furnace—"Looks like hell, doesn't it?"

Native—"My, how these Normalites have traveled."

Mary B.—"What shall we do?"

Irene—"I'll spin a coin. If it's heads we'll go to the movies; tails, we play tennis; and if it stands on edge we will study."

Prof. Mathes—"Whom does the baby resemble?"

Prof. Windes—"Well, he has my wife's eyes and my nose, but I can't imagine where he got his voice unless from the fire whistle."

Miss Pitts—"Have you seen Dauber's new painting? He calls it 'Friendless'."

Miss Slocumb—"Yes, it's very realistic. I understand a Senior posed for him."

Jokes

"If a beau should steal a kiss from me,"
Said Emma Fritz to Sue,
"Do you wish that I should tell you
Just exactly what I'd do?"
I'd chasten him quite roundly
To see if he would stop it,
And then I'd make him put it back
Exactly where he got it."

Uncle Sid (to supposed little girl, in short skirts, on crowded car)—"Here, sis; sit on my lap, I'll hold you."

Supposed little girl—"How dare you, you brute! Who would have thought that I, a mother and a grandmother, would have lived to be insulted by a horrid old male."

Adella—"The cuddiculum is higher this term than it was in the winter, isn't it?"

Grace B.—"Yes, almost $40, I think."

Prof. Windes—"When do the leaves begin to turn?"

Rose—"Just before Exams."

$20.00 reward for a pass in Grammar and Methods—Lillian Arrants.

Lost—Between sewing room and car line, a rat—See Edith Baskett.

Little bits of powder
Little daubs of paint
Make Anna Gresham pretty
Even if she ain't.

Foresee—"If you had in your head what I have in mine"—

Marion Haun—"Oh, I had them once, but I managed to get rid of them."

Wanted to be allowed to run the school for one day—Eutsler.

Jokes

Nell H—"Do you believe in heredity?"

Pemberton—"Of course I do. Why, I've got one of the brightest boys you ever saw."

"Whaley," said the President sternly, "You are found guilty of having helped steal a can of pineapple from Mrs. Gurley's pantry yesterday. The fine will be one dollar."

Whaley laid a two dollar bill on the desk. "Yes, Mr. President," he said, "this will pay you up to and including tomorrow."

Jack Rogers, talking to some boys—"Well, gentlemen, I tell you this. I have kissed the South Sea Island maiden, I have kissed the dainty Japanese, I have kissed the girls of England, of Spain, of France, and of America, but tell you truthfully, to kiss my wife is best of all."

Quillen excitedly—"By George, you're right, there!"

Miss Moore—"Why did Macbeth hesitate?"

Evelyn—"Because he couldn't two step."

A kiss is the explosion of Love's artillery after the call to arms.

Uncle Sid (addressing the student body)—"When I see all of you students coming to assembly every morning, it makes me want to go back again."

Minnie—"Old boy, that's just a pop-eyed fairy tale."

The new girl (noting the radiator in her room)—"What are all these little pipe organs here for? I don't intend to take."

"George," said Mrs. McNeil, "a ragged tramp came by this morning who could quote Shakespeare. I gave him something to eat."

George—"That's right; he may have been a retired school teacher."

Mary Whaley—"When I first saw you I thought you were somebody from home."

Huff—"Really?"

Whaley—"Yes; Uncle Sid has a bull dog with a face just like yours."
